A BID TO CROWD-FUND THE REPAIR OF

TSAGNORIA SCHOOL

ANOSY, MADAGASCAR

Will transform this school

FOR THE 150 CHILDREN WHO ATTEND
THE PRIMARY SCHOOL IN TSAGNORIA, A FULL DAY OF LESSONS IS NEVER A CERTAINTY.

If it rains – which could last several days - school is out. During the long monsoon season, heavy rains cascade in through the dilapidated roof, flooding the two classrooms. The students have to sweep out the puddles before the class can resume. Frequent floods have destroyed all of the pupils' textbooks – the teacher uses the last remaining copy, painstakingly copying the day's lesson onto a faded blackboard.

There are only 3 benches in the school

The majority of students are forced to sit on the floor, severely hindering their ability to learn. In addition, the partition-wall between the two classrooms has collapsed, which makes running the two classrooms at the same time highly disruptive for both the teachers and students.

TSAGNORIA IS NOT AN EXCEPTIONAL CASE

Since the political crisis in 2009, national investment in education has plummeted by 82%. This has resulted in the slow decay of education infrastructure across Madagascar. The impacts are particularly severe in the isolated and vulnerable region of Anosy – situated in the southeast of the island and home to the rural community of Tsagnoria.

Unbelievably, at Tsagnoria, in spite of the abysmal conditions, the students continue to attend with a keen motivation to learn. The state of the building and classroom, however, continues to crumble. Repairs and refurbishments are urgently required before the building becomes completely unusable.
